

Publication Fees for AGU Journals

- Authors who have funding are expected to help support the costs of publication; those who do not may request a reduction or a waiver of fees. Waivers of excess length fees must be approved by the Editor.
- Most fees related to publication in AGU journals are based on the Publication Unit (PU) as described below. Using the online calculator (<http://www.agu.org/cgi-bin/wc/wc.cgi>), authors can determine for themselves the likely charges prior to submitting a contribution to an AGU journal.
- There is no additional charge to include color figures in the article as published online and the color will appear in both the html and the pdf version. It is not essential to have a black and white version in the printed journal if it will not reproduce well. The added costs for printed color are given at the end of this document.
- “Electronic reprints” are available for all journals. Authors who honor the corresponding fee receive a user name and password that they can share with colleagues for their personal use. The user name can be used for 200 accesses; each access permits the reader to see both the html and the pdf versions of the article.
- Author choice^c allows authors the opportunity to make their articles open for others to read for free: see <http://www.agu.org/pubs/authorchoice.html>

Definition of a Publication Unit:

For the published article online

1 PU = 380 word equivalents (1 word equivalent is 6 characters or spaces)

1 PU = 1 static figure, either black and white or color

1 PU = 1 file containing dynamic material

[Note: To encourage the use of dynamic material, no fee will be assessed for dynamic material for articles accepted in 2007 and 2008.]

^aFor accompanying online-only material, such as data sets or other supporting material

1 PU = 1 file up to 1 megabyte (MB)

0.05 PU = each additional 1 MB per file

Additional Costs for Printing Color:

- There is no additional charge for having color online. Since the beginning of 2006, online-only color has been included in both the html and the pdf versions without a fee.
- Except for GRL, authors may have some but not all of their color figures in the printed version. If this option is chosen, however, at least two figures must be included in the print.
- All prices presume that acceptable electronic files have been supplied by the author. If figures must be scanned from hard copy, an additional charge of $100 per figure applies.
