

Student and Early Career Events

Hello from the Student and Early Career Organizers of OSM 2020

We hope all of you are as excited as we are to see the latest in ocean science research, meet new friends/colleagues, and catch up with old ones. For students and early career scientists, the Oceans Sciences Meeting is also an excellent opportunity to expand your professional skills and career interests. We have been working hard over the last year to bring you a selection of professional development events to support the new generation of leaders in the ocean sciences. Let this flyer be your guide to the student and early career activities and other events you should know about happening at OSM 2020 in San Diego, California!

Looking forward to seeing you there!
